

Every Patriotic American
Salutes His Nation's Flag

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag, or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute.

Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute.

Those men not in uniform should remove their headress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart.

Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart.

The salute to the flag in a moving column is rendered as the flag approaches the spectator and is held until it has passed.

SAN FRANCISCO MAN CITED BY KITTS FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Three people were injured yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock when cars driven by Howard W. Ellison, 43, North Hollywood, and Meyer C. Freeman, 21, San Francisco, collided on east approach of the highway bridge just west of Boca. Ellison, a salesman and his wife, 38, were taken to a Reno hospital with severe cuts and bruises. Mrs. Ellison has a possible fracture of the skull.

The accident occurred, according to State Highway Patrolman Carl Kitts, who cited Freeman for reckless driving, when the latter drove on the wrong side of the highway going west and collided head-on with the Ellison machine which was traveling east.

Taken before Justice of the Peace C. E. Smith, Freeman was fined $100 after pleading guilty to the charge.

The wrecked cars were taken to the Truckee AAA Garage and to Thornton's Garage here.

Among the plans to keep the young ladies occupied there will be a group breakfast, then an invasion of the ice skating rink, weather permitting. Then they will take to the hills for skiing and tobogganing.

After the evening meal, the cocktail room will be converted into an after-ski hi-jinks of dancing and various diversions.

The group will leave the resort on the return trip to the bay area, en-training at Truckee on the 10 p.m. train Sunday night.

Miss Percy Gill will be in charge of the group with two other teachers accompanying as chaperones.

SANITARY BOARD ACTS TO INSURE PROPER DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE

Because of recurring filth resulting from the inability of the garbage collectors to gain access to disposal containers, the Truckee Sanitary Board this week issued an order which places the responsibility upon the shoulders of the owners. The order requires all cans or garbage containers to be placed where they are accessible to the collectors and asks that all refuse be confined to the containers. Steps will be taken, Secretary G. E. Hofmann declared, to see that the request is followed.

Disposal of garbage, except through the properly prescribed method, Hofmann said, results in an unsightly as well as highly unsanitary condition and the board cannot be responsible for a possible contamination, he added. The order goes into effect at once.

Truckee-Tahoe Club Host To East Bay Rotarians Monday

Inter-City Rotary Session Is Marked by Fellowship And Patriotism.

Good fellowship and the spirit of patriotism prevailed at the annual inter-city meeting of the East Bay and Truckee-Tahoe Rotary clubs at Capitol Hall Monday night when a program of outstanding entertainment was featured by the visiting Rotarians. Each year at this time the Berkeley club sponsors a visit to the Reno and Truckee clubs and the visitors promised to return next year with even a larger number than the 90 or more here Monday.

The visits are arranged by Cliff Radford, chairman of the Berkeley inter-city meeting committee, and the delegation from many east bay localities was headed by Clint Evans, freshman football coach at University of California and president of the Berkeley club. Other officials attending were Bruce Correy, president of the Richmond club; Ken Henderson, president of the Reno club; Fred Granholt, of the Oakland club, and Tate Williams, Reno secretary. Art Marts was program chairman.

President Oscar Jones of the local club opened the meeting and turned the affair over to Tom Stockheimer, master of ceremonies, who introduced the guests and speakers. Evans gave an inspiring talk on Americanism and the Rotary. Other speakers included Colonel Davis of the University of California, who compared the current war with World War No. 1, in which he served with the coast artillery. Others spoke briefly, but for the most part the program was taken up with entertainment numbers including the Berkeley male quartet, two charming musicians and songsters, a magician and solos by artists of the visiting groups.

President Correy on behalf of the Richmond Club, presented the Truckee-Tahoe group with a $25 defense bond as a token of appreciation. Orchids from the Berkeley delegation were presented to the wives of President Jones and Secretary Lloyd A. Greene.

Well over 120 members and guests enjoyed the dinner and program—an outstanding event on the local Rotary calendar.

The sanitary board is using sound judgment in issuing a request that garbage and other refuse be kept in containers and the containers made available to the collector. In past years we have witnessed the unsanitary condition which has resulted from discarding garbage on top of the snow, scattered far and wide and anywhere but near the authorized containers. We are surprised that it becomes necessary for the board to take such action as we felt it was not only the duty but the privilege for residents and business houses to keep the town as free from unsightly debris and germ infested swill as possible, even though conditions during the winter are not too favorable for the task.

The bowling tournaments which have been going along now for only three weeks are proving the popularity of a good clean sport and prove that pleasant competition is enjoyed thoroughly by the enthusiasts. We heartily commend the management for providing this outlet for competitive enthusiasm.

Hats off to the boys on the highway department for the swell job they have been doing in keeping the highway clear for all traffic. There are times on Donner Summit when the task seems almost impossible and would stump the average man, but the plows continue to drive through making it easy for motorists to travel in comfort.

AUTO OWNERS ARE URGED TO SEND IN FEE OR PAY DOUBLE

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29 —(UP)—Department of motor vehicles officials today urged lagging motorists to buy 1942 license tax plate strips before Feb. 4 or pay penalties equal to 100 per cent of the registration fee and 50 per cent of the motor vehicles license tax.

It was estimated there were one million motorists without new licenses with a week to go before the dead line. Department offices will remain open this Saturday afternoon to handle large crowds.

Car owners unable to visit a branch office for plates may enclose the fee and registration card in an envelope and mail both to the Sacramento department headquarters. The postmark should show Feb. 4 or earlier and currency should be avoided. Postal money order, certified check or bank draft are the prescribed forms of payment.

Aviation Classes of Two Colleges To Be Moved To Truckee By March 1

Placer Sacramento J. C.s To Have Flight Centers At Local Airport For Duration Of War, According To Present Plans.

H. E. Hibbard, manager and chief pilot, and G. S. Herrington, president, of the Placer Flying Service, were in Truckee this week completing arrangements with directors of the local chamber of commerce for the establishment of a flight training center at the airport east of here. This move was made to get the center out of the combat zone.

It is hoped to have the hangar and other necessary facilities installed within the next two weeks, although classes may not be started before March 1, Hibbard said.

Hibbard will be in charge of the flight center as chief pilot and will, with his family, reside here permanently. There will be a total of four instructors and the classes will comprise between 15 and 20 students each from the Placer Union and Sacramento Junior Colleges. It is planned to have two groups here each week for periods of three days each, with a total enrollment of between 30 and 40 students. More may be added later.

Hibbard indicated, depending upon the demand, six planes will be stationed here for the center.

Students will be transported by busses from the two schools, this feature having been arranged by Dr. E. E. Oertel of the Placer jersey at Auburn and Glenn Mercer of the Sacramento school.

Details of the flight program were worked out at a meeting held in Santa Monica and Oakland last week with C. A. A. officials and school authorities from all parts of the state attending.

Both primary and secondary instruction will be given at Truckee, Hibbard said.

Ground school instructions will be given at the schools. The plan is to have the students take three days of ground school instruction and then go to Truckee for three days of flying instruction.

The age limit for C. P. T. students has been reduced to 18 years, Dr. Oertel said. Students must have had one year of college work to take the primary course but can continue with the secondary course as soon as they have completed the first.

The government now pays the cost of physical examinations and insurance. Students who enroll in either course are deferred until they have completed it from military service.

Other flight centers which have been established are located at Carson City, Reno and Ely, Nev., and Blythe, Calif. Truckee is one of the best locations as it is necessary to travel only 70 miles, while most other flight centers are between 150 and 200 miles from their base schools.

LOCAL WOMEN TURN OUT MUCH WORK FOR RED CROSS HERE

Mrs. G. J. E. Keetch, chairman of the production committee of the Truckee branch of the American Red Cross, last week sent to chapter headquarters the following finished articles: 1 shawl, 2 scarfs, 2 child's snow suits, 3 romper suits, 9 sleeping garments, 1 knit pants, 1 sweater, 1 girl's dress, 8 pairs of men's socks. This represents a total of 313 hours of volunteer labor—and articles representing 210 hours were sent in about two weeks ago. Approximately 50 women are sewing or knitting for the Red Cross in Truckee and vicinity. Just now the production committee is having difficulty securing sufficient material for the workers, but they hope to secure a new supply in the near future. Those who have work out are asked to make an effort to return all possible finished work by February 1.

Today Mrs. Keetch is meeting with a group on the west side of the summit who are having an all-day work meeting at Kingvale Park.

by LYTTLE HULL

A month or so ago the German military position appeared to be unassailable. Then some Heinie with a one track "up" complex, decided that the German army should "take a day off" and clean up Russia. Since then the Nazi star seems to be falling. But unless this war comes to a very sudden and unexpected termination their star will rise again, and it will fall again and then it will again soar only to fall once more. Let us hope that upon one of these nose dives it stays down.

The Japanese star—at the moment of this writing—is coming steadily toward the apex except for an occasional bump as it hits an Allied air pocket. It, too, will reach a ceiling and descend sharply only to rise and descend and rise and descend again. This is the pattern which all wars follow. This is the pattern which all endeavors in life follow. The Good Lord just created things that way. If the principle of "whatever goes up must come down" didn't exist, we would continue in the direction in which we originally started and upset the laws of nature.

Hannibal had his ups and downs. So did Julius Caesar and Alexander and Napoleon and Grant and Lee and Foch and Hindenburg; and now all of us enthusiastic fighters are "in for ours," and those who have the last "up" will be the winners. It is up to us to be "up" when the shooting stops.

A budding young industrial soldier named John D. Rockefeller started an oil war a generation or so ago and probably had as many ups and downs as Napoleon had. He never weakened and finally became the victorious leader of one of the world's great industries.

And so it goes all through time. Neither war nor period nor man exists—in or out of history—which has not suffered from low tides as well as prospered with the high tides.

The corner grocer didn't just rise there without making a heartbreaking struggle against almost insurmountable odds; the town banker fought a long hard uphill fight to get where he is; Silas Jones—with the big farm down the road—sweat man; a drop of blood before he reached the position of comfort in which he and his family now live. George Washington and Abraham Lincoln would have committed suicide if they had been anything but "giants". A great many people in this world will commit suicide, because they can't stand the downs which we humans are all going to get before the war is over no matter which side of the struggle we are on.

All life consists of ups and downs and 99 per cent of all human reaction is to struggle harder when things get bad and to relax when they look good. Occasionally—in national affairs—a great leader carries his nation to success because he inspires his people to struggle unceasingly with him whether things look promising or black; and he wins his wars during the periods of relaxation on the part of the enemy.

It is a dreary job to write about the shocks and disappointments to come—but we are going to get them while this war continues and they are going to be much worse than we now imagine. At the end, when the sun peeps through the clouds of war, there will be a rainbow and it will be for us; for our people don't lose wars. Our war history, as does our peace record, shows that the American people start slowly and get battered around pretty badly during the early period—but once under way nothing has ever stopped them.

Roger Williams' Battle

It was a day little noted by the American colonies when a 27-year-old clergyman debarked at Boston from England on February 5, 1631, 311 years ago. The name of this young immigrant was Roger Williams, son of a London tailor. Today we know him as the founder of religious freedom in America, a champion of men's right to worship and believe as they see fit, a staunch opponent of state authority which seeks to rule the consciences of men.

These beliefs of Roger Williams are written large in the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights, with its guarantees of the freedom of the press, of worship, of assembly. He would understand the meaning of the war America is waging today to defend those rights against extinction.

These rights, which free people now take so readily for granted, were all too heretical for many citizens in Williams' own time. For expressing such "dangerous doctrines" while the teacher of the church at Salem Williams was banished from Massachusetts by order of the General Court. He fled for safety to Rhode Island, and there established the first settlement in the colonies guaranteeing religious tolerance to men of all faiths, and crating a refuge for victims of intolerance and tyranny. From that thine forth, America has kept faith with the cause first espoused or these chores by this champion of liberty. For more than three centuries, this land has remained a sanctuary to the oppressed, a place in which millions ground down by poverty, ignorance or persecution in the Old World, could find hope, opportunity and tolerance on a scale never known in the world before.

To keep this a land of liberty, to maintain the freedoms for which such men as Roger Williams fought, to rid the earth of sinister, freedom-hating powers, is the contest in which America is engaged today.

My Place In The Sun

by DOUG BARKETT

It has been a long time since the Hot Stove Historians League membership has been replenished in this column. Perhaps that is because people are looking to the future and the present and neglecting the past these days. But this week in the Grass Valley Morning Union, Ed Kinyon devoted his "Observations and Experiences" column on page one (and three) to a lengthy narrative of "Schallenger's Truckee Lake Vigil". The article dealt with the solitary stay of 17-year-old Moses Schallenger in the winter of 1844-45—two years ahead of the Donner Party—at the foot of the lake that now bears the name of that ill-fated pioneer group but at that time was known as Truckee Lake. Schallenger, with Joseph Foster and Allen Montgomery, had built a cabin about a quarter of a mile from the east end of the lake and dug in to stay. In mid-November the scarcity of game and the severity of the weather prompted them to pull stakes and push westward. Schallenger's strength would not permit him to proceed, so he turned back to spend the winter alone in the cabin. He subsisted almost entirely on foxes he trapped during the winter and his diary tells of reading and talking aloud to himself to break the lonely silence of the Sierra winter.

Search On For Colt Lost In Drive Over Sierra

TAHOE CITY, Jan. 29.—Search is being continued in the Georgetown and Folsom area west of Lake Tahoe for the fine two year old colt, Sir Jester, owned by Miss Pat Henry of Tahoe which was lost from a herd of horses taken from Lake Tahoe to Folsom by Bud Jones on December 7.

The trip was made by the old Rubicon Springs road of early-day fame the road being the first into Lake Tahoe, but now only a trail in various spots along the way.

When the horses, which were being taken to winter pastures on the Jones ranch near Folsom, reached the Rubicon river, the bridge was washed away by the heavy December rains and Sir Jester was last seen struggling manfully against the flood as he was carried down the river.

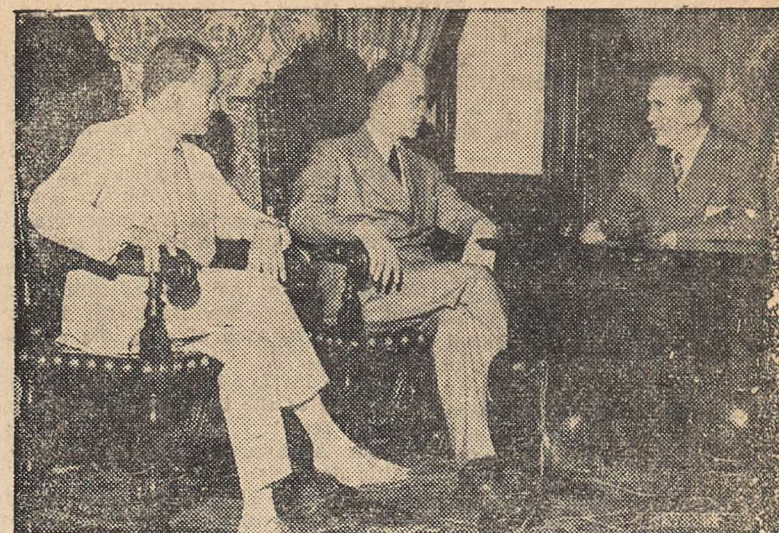

His young mistress, who is a noted equestrienne and at present attending the University of Nevada, organized a searching party on December 14 and rode over 40 miles through the rugged back country looking for her lost colt which was a family pet. It was feared that he would be lost in the snow covered back country with no pasture or food available. The searching party which included Jones and Lester Barnes, well known horsemen of the lake area, found the colt's tracks where he had gone up over the summit so it was hoped he would follow the herd. So far no word has been received regarding him but all nearby ranchers have been asked to be on the lookout for the young animal which is dark bay with a brand resembling a clover leaf.

A WEEK OF THE WAR

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, center, head of the U. S. delegation to the Rio de Janeiro conference, is shown with U. S. Ambassador to Brazil Jefferson Caffery as they talked with Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's foreign minister and administrator of the war's third conference American foreign ministers.

Chairman Nelson of the War Production Board abolished the OPM and transferred its functions regarding production, purchasing, priorities, materials, civilian supply and subcontracting to a new streamlined organization under the board. In addition, Mr. Nelson created under the new board a progress reporting and a planning unit to suggest improvements from time to time.

Mr. Nelson stressed two fundamental differences between the old and new organization: an increased amount of authority and a more definite delegation of responsibility to promote speed. He said the main objective of the new organization was the full mobilization in the war effort of every national resource, large and small.

Mr. Nelson named Ernest Kanzler to convert auto industry facilities to war use. Mr. Kanzler will have complete authority to do whatever is necessary, Mr. Nelson said. He said that he expected to appoint as many other men with similar authority for other industries as are necessary.

THE WAR FRONT

President Roosevelt told his press conference an inter-allied supply council and similar joint commands are in existence, and excellent progress is being made to strengthen the position of the United Nations in the Southwest Pacific.

The Army announced Gen. MacArthur's forces have repulsed continuous heavy attacks by reinforced Japanese units on Bataan Peninsula inflicting heavy losses on the enemy with comparatively low losses to the defenders. The entire Japanese 14th Army, together with other units landed on Luzon. U. S. Army forces sank a Japanese cruiser and a large tanker 100 miles off Jolo, and shot title to any vehicle under the terms of installment contracts drawn up before January 1 and repossession of any vehicle involved in a breach of such contract. The agency also amended its tire freezing rules to allow clergymen to purchase new tires and tubes. OPA put a ceiling price on materials used in retreading used tires.

ARMY

The President said the United Nations are collaborating with the U. S. to effect transfers to the American armed service of the Americans who had enlisted before the war under foreign flags. War Secretary Stimson announced completion of plans for the formation of a 6th Armored Division and two additional all-Negro units: an infantry division and an air pursuit squadron. The House passed and sent to the Senate legislation appropriating $12,500,000,000 to provide 33,000 new Army planes and equipment for them.

TRANSPORTATION

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted railroads permission to increase passenger fares 10 percent. Exempt from the increase are special fares granted to military or naval men on furlough. Permission was also granted to the Railway Express Agency, Inc., to make an emergency additional charge of 10 cents per package sent at first, second or third class rates.

NAVY

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $15,000,000,000 for the Navy and signed a bill authorizing establishment of a special limited-service Marine Corps composed of World War veterans and older men to be used in patrolling and guarding vital facilities. The Navy announced that students in school or college who have not yet reached their 20th birthday may enlist in the Naval Reserve with permission to complete the current school year before reporting for duty.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $100,000,000 to be used by the OGD for air raid protection of civilians. Congress authorized the appropriation and formally placed the responsibility for civilian protection with the OGD. The FBI announced it will conduct special war traffic schools for police of 120 strategically located cities. The War Department announced that in cooperation with the OGD it will establish six more schools to teach civilians defense workers protection against chemical weapons such as incendiary bombs.

SHIPS

The Maritime Commission awarded contracts for construction of 660 vessels. This brought the total of Liberty ships contracted for to 997. Labor Director Hillman proposed a plan to place shipyard workers on a six-day, 48-hour week in the Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lakes Zones.

Mail Goes Thru to Peak Snowbound in Nat'l Forest

The delivery of daily mail has been long accepted by the public as a routine matter, but to Mr. and Mrs. MacGinnis, occupying an isolated Aircraft Warning Station on the Bloomfield District of the Tahoe National Forest, such service is a constant source of wonder.

Since last December, MacGinnis' station has been snowbound, but every day, irrespective of rain and snow, the MacGinnises have had their paper, magazines, supplies and mail delivered to their doorstep by Mail Carrier Harbor of North Bloomfield. The mail is carried as far as possible by Harbor in his car and then skied into Graniteville over the snow. Following the recent warm spell, most of the snow melted and with the exception of a few places, the route was passable. An appeal to Supervisor Jay Coughlin of North Columbia by Harbor, brought out the county road crew who plowed the road open, thus making Harbor's task of adhering to the tradition "The mail must go thru", a great deal easier. The MacGinnises will long remember the thrill of the silent magical appearance of their mail at their doorstep far out on an isolated snowbound peak.

Thurman Tells Of Stand On Guard Issue

Although the daily press has informed the people throughout the district of the various matters of legislation taken up during the recent special session of the state legislature, the writer, as your representative in the lower house, believes that a report as to his stand on the state guard bill might be in order.

First let me state that I voted for every state guard bill which appeared on the floor of the lower house. Five times I voted aye on such bills and in addition voted in favor of a strictly home guard bill as well.

Second may I state that I received but three communications relative to the state guard, one from the board of supervisors of El Dorado County and another from the chamber of commerce of the same county. Both of these communications were in the form of resolutions opposing the premature calling out of their local guard companies to do guard duty elsewhere leaving their home county without state guard protection. We shall not go into detail as to the entire contents of the resolutions but we do agree with their contents and have felt all along that the calling out of the local guard units to do duty elsewhere was unwise and premature. The third communication was from a citizen in Nevada county who was opposed to the state guard

Many guardsmen joined the state guard believing that it was being organized for home defense duty and that they would only be called out of their home area in some case of a real state emergency such as insurrection or invasion. We do not say that the state guard program was misrepresented to these men but we did hear one senator on the floor of that house, who is also a member of the guard, make such a statement. To call businessmen, ranchers, married men with families to support away from their jobs to do guard duty in another county, which should have been able to take care of its own problems as to guard duty, was never the intention of the majority of the members of the state legislature when they passed the original act. That is the reason why the legislature placed certain restrictions in the new guard bill which was passed by both houses last Thursday.

Senate Bill No. 36, the new guard bill, no wpermits an active state guard of 10,000 members of which 7,000 men can be on active duty at one time. And let me add here, that less than 2,000 guardsmen were on active duty who nwe were in session last week.

Under the new bill, guardsmen when on active duty, will be paid $:

BLACKOUT

A blackout warning means YOU. Learn to take it seriously NOW. To obey it, however, you have got to be prepared, not just a few hours before enemy planes are overhead, but at all times. YOU should be ready NOW—TODAY!

A blackout isn't intended to plunge everybody into Stygian blackness and paralyze all normal activity. The idea is to enable you to go about your business without guiding the enemy.

The first thing to do is select one or at most two rooms for you and your family to stay in during the raid. That means that all you have to do about the rest of the house is KEEP THE LIGHTS OFF. Now concentrate on your one blackout room. The most opaque material for your windows. Sateen is good, but stiff black paper pasted over the panes will serve. Its perfectly safe to use lights inside your blacked-out room, provided they are shielded. Avoid open flame light. To test the thoroughness of your blackout, step outside and walk around the house. If a SLIVER OF LIGHT shows ANYWHERE, use more black paper or fabric. DO NOT leave a NIGHT LIGHT burning in your store or office unless it can be turned off by a switch located on the outside of the building. This is important and may save you from damaged doors or windows.

CO-OPERATE with your local air raid warden. Follow his suggestions. Your air raid warden has been appointed to help you.

Your willingness to cooperate and prepare for this emergency is a duty you owe to your neighbors' your community and your nation.

Two Can Sing

by JAMES M. CAIN

W-N-U. RELEASE

CHAPTER 2

"Were you the one in the hat?" Leonard asked.

"Yes, of course," replied Cecil.

"Well, I've got a little quarrel with you."

"For laughing at me. What was so funny?"

"Why, you're quite mistaken, Mrs. Hertz and I were talking; I may have been laughing, but not at you. Why—"

"All right, then. What is it?"

"Nothing, only—well, I judged from what you said that you wanted a competent opinion on your wife's singing. I dropped in at that recital. Perhaps you'd like to know what I thought?"

"I'd be delighted."

"Then why not drop over and see me?"

"I don't know any reason why not."

She had a suite up on the tenth floor with a grand piano in it and music scattered all over the place and she let me in herself. She was good-looking, all right. She had a pale ivory skin, but her hair was black and so were her eyes.

She had a drink ready, and asked me if I was a musician. I said no, I was a contractor, and next thing I knew I had two drinks and was gabbing about myself like some drummer in a chair car.

After a while, though, I pulled up, and said "Well?" and she switched off to Doris. "Your wife has a remarkable voice, and her tone is well produced. Of course..."

"Go on, what else?"

"I would criticize her style. But good style doesn't come in a day. If she works at it, that ought to come around."

"Then you think she ought to go on?"

"With such looks and such a voice certainly."

With that we dropped it. In spite of all she said, it added up to faint praise. A boy came in with a note.

"Something wrong?"

"I'm singing at some war veterans' thing in Brooklyn tonight and I promised to do a song they want and I've forgotten to get the words to it; and the man who was to give me the words has gone out of town and here's his note saying he'll give me a ring tomorrow—and no words."

"What song?"

"Oh, some song they sang in the Navy during the war. Something about a destroyer. Isn't that annoying?"

"Oh, that song."

"You know it?"

"Sure. I was a gub in the war when I was a kid."

"Well, for heaven's sake, sing it!"

She sat down to the piano and started to play it. She already knew the tune. I sang.

She got up, walked over to the sofa and sat down, her face perfectly white.

"Borland," she said, "your wife's no good."

"Oh, she's not?"

"But you have a voice."

"I—what?"

"You have a voice."

Her eyes weren't wide open any more. They were closed to a couple of slits. Then she kissed me and kissed hard.

"What made you go to Hertz?" she asked. "Didn't you know any better?"

"Yes."

"Then why did you do it?"

"I had to."

She twisted her head around, where it was on my shoulder, and looked at me. "You're crazy about her, aren't you?"

"More or less."

"I'm sorry I said she was no good. She really has a voice. She might improve... Maybe I was jealous of her."

She started to laugh. "You could have knocked me over with a straw when I saw Hugo Lorentz coming out there to the piano."

"You know him?"

"Known him for years. I hadn't seen him since he played for me in Berlin last winter."

"I've had my suspicions about Hugo."

"You needn't have."

"I thought he was taking her for a ride."

"He's not. She's taking him for a ride. He said she does nothing but torture him and every man she gets into her clutches."

"What about these other men she's got her clutches on?"

"For heaven's sake, can't a woman that good-looking have a little bit of a good time? What do you care? You're having a good time, aren't you? Right now? I'll sock you if you say you're not."

"Believe it or not, this is my first offense."

"And you've got her, haven't you?"

"No. I'm just one other man she's got her clutches on, one more sap to torture."

"You poor dear. You are crazy about her, aren't you?"

"Come on; what about these other men?"

She thought a long time and then said, "Leonard, I'm not going to tell you any more of what Hugo said, except this: That no man gets any favors from her, if that's what you're worried about. And especially Hugo doesn't. She sees that they keep excited, but inside she's as cold as ice and thinks of nothing but herself."

"You're not telling me anything I don't know."

"I hate that woman."

"I spend half my time hating her and half my time being insane about her. What's she got, anyway?"

"One thing, she's got it a face that man would commit suicide for. Another thing she's got it a figure that if he wasn't dead yet, he'd stand up and commit suicide all over again. And another thing she's got it a healthy professional interest in the male of the species, that enjoys sticking pins into it just to see it wriggle. But if you want her, I'm determined you're going to have her. And really have her. You see, I like you pretty well."

"I like you a little myself."

"That woman has got to be hurt."

"You think you could hurt Doris?"

Listen; you'd be up against some thing."

"You didn't hurt her where it hurt in the triumph department, baby. You go get yourself a triumph and see her wriggle out of that."

"Oh, gosh, I thought you had an idea!"

"You're going to give a recital and will that fix her?"

"So I'm going to give a recital. Well in the first place I can't sing, and in the second place I don't want to sing and in the third place it's just plain silly."

"Leonard, if you put yourself in my hands, if you do just what I say I'll have you singing like an angel in any concert hall in town within a year. Or maybe with one of the symphony orchestras... Let her try and laugh that off! Baby, do you want that woman? Do you want her eating out of your hand? Do—"

I opened my eyes to razz it some more, but all of a sudden a picture popped in front of my eyes, of how Doris would look out there, listening to me, and I started to laugh.

"What's the matter?"

"It's the most cockeyed thing I ever heard in my life. But—all right. We'll pretend that's how it's going to come out."

"You'll have to work."

"I'm used to work."

"You'll have to study music, and sight reading, and harmony, and languages, especially Italian."

"Perche devo studiare l'italiano?"

"You speak Italian?"

"Didn't I tell you I started out as an architect? We all take our two years in Italy, studying the old ruins. Sure, I speak Italian."

"Oh, you darling... I'll want payment."

"I've got enough money."

"Who's talking about money? I want kisses and lots of them."

"Well, that sounds swell."

It's one thing to start something like that, but it's something else to go through with it. I bought a tuning fork and some exercise books, went up to the third floor of the Craig, Borland Building, and ha-ha-ha-ed every morning, hoping no one would hear me. Then in the afternoon I'd go down and take a lesson, and make some payments. I liked paying better than learning and felt pretty like a fool.

But then Cecil sent me over to a music school for a course in sight reading. It was taught by a Frenchman named Guizot, and along with the sight reading he gave us a little harmony. When I found out that music has structure to it, just as a bridge has, right away I began to get interested. I took Guizot on for some private lessons, and began to work. He gave me exercises to go, melodies to harmonize, and chords to unscramble; and I rented a piano and had that moved in, so I could hear what I was doing. I couldn't play it but I could hit the chords and that was the main thing.

Then he talked to me about symphonies, and of course I had to dig into them. I bought a little phonograph and a flock of symphony albums, and got the scores and began to take them apart, so I could see how they were put together. The scores you don't buy; they cost too much. But I rented them and first I'd have one for a couple of weeks and then another.

The sight reading was tough. You just stand up there and read it, without any piano to give you the tune, or anything else. I never heard of it until Cecil began to talk about it, didn't even know what it meant. But I took it on, just like the rest of it and beat intervals into my head until I could hear them in my sleep. After a while I knew I was making progress, but then when I'd go down to Cecil and try to read something off while she played the accompaniment, I'd get all mixed up and have to stop. She spotted the reason for it. "You're not watching the words," she said. "You can read the exercises because all you think about is the music. But songs have words too, and you have to sing them. You can't just go la-la-la. Look at the words; don't look at the notes. Your eye will half see them, without your looking at them but the main thing is the words. Get them right and the music will sing itself."

I tried the way she said, and sure enough it came a little better. I kept doing harder exercises all the time and then one day I knew I wouldn't have to study sight reading any more. I could read anything.

The ha-ha stuff was the worst. I did what Cecil told me, and she seemed satisfied, but to me it was just a pain in the neck. But then one day something happened. A scold came out of my throat that made me jump. It was a big, round high one that shook the room. I tried it again, and it wouldn't come. I vocalized over-

MAKE HIM WANT TO DO IT

Want a hint on how to collect dues for your club?

To collect money for an organization that has a social foundation usually requires more tact than a like campaign for a philanthropic organization.

So when the following letter was sent to 75 members of the association of the secretaries of the various chambers of commerce in Texas, the result was poor. One man was so mad he wrote a letter denouncing it. Here is the unfortunate letter:

"We are trying to induce new chamber of commerce managers to join our association, but we are handicapped by the fact that a number of the older managers have not responded with their dues as yet.

"You intend paying your dues. Why not do it now and give the membership committee a little assistance? Send your check to—"

Texas."

Sidney King, Harlingen, Texas, president of the Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers, reconstructed the letter and suggested that the following would be much better:

"The president of our organization has placed the honor and a responsibility on me by asking me to serve this year as chairman of the membership committee for the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"No man in our organization has worked for its success than you have so I am coming to you for advice and suggestions. What would you do to build membership and maintain interest of our professional co-workers in our state association?"

"You are recognized as a leader in your profession, and surely your suggestions will aid me to bring more members to share the inspiration found within our organization.

With sincere assurance of my appreciation for your assistance, and with best regards, I am, Most truly yours."

The response to such a letter, says Mr. King, would probably bring a reply that would read something like this:

"You have flattered me in your letter asking for my help with the membership activity of the Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers association. I have been genuinely interested in what TCCM and its associations have meant to me and I am anxious to bring such inspirations to my fellow secretaries in the profession, therefore I shall be glad to do what I can to help you.

"First, find attached hereto my check for my annual dues; I just neglected sending them sooner.

"Next, I would suggest that as many of our present members make a personal visit to non-members in their immediate area; second best, a letter telling them what the TCCM has done for us and what it should mean to them ought to help.

"If you will advise me the names of the non-members in my section of

Public Schools Week Will Be Observed In State Beginning On April 27

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29— California's twenty-third observance of Public Schools Week will begin this year on Monday, April 27, according to an announcement made here today by Charles Albert Adams, chairman of the state committee in charge of the activities.

Adams, former member of the state board of education, has been chairman of the week since its inception immediately following World War I. Schools were in a serious condition then due to teachers who had gone into war service. Similar conditions, said Adams' statement, are beginning to be noticeable now, and will become increasingly more threatening as the war progresses.

"The coming observance of Public Schools Week," said Adams, "will give the parents of school children and the public generally an opportunity of having up-to-date information on our public schools, their needs and purposes, in this critical period."

This observance has been gradually growing in public interest, more than one million California visitors having attended their neighborhood schools during the week last year.

That kind of letter is better than the one originally sent because it refrains from criticizing the person receiving it, and makes him want to do something. The writer of it gets co-operation instead of antagonism. Always try to make a person want to do something, instead of trying to force him to do something.

600,000 Californians Are Expected To Sign Up In Draft Registration

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29— State headquarters of Selective Service today announced that of the estimated total of 600,000 California men between the ages of 20 and 44 to be registered February 14-15-16, approximately 90,000 will be in the 20-21 year old age group.

Men required to register under the nation's initial war-time registration and in the third national R-Day will be those men born on or after February 17, 1897 and on or before December 31, 1921. Those men having registered on one of the first two calls do not have to register again. Figures made known today by Brig. General Joseph O. Donovan, state director of selective service, indicate that registration in the continental United States will approximate 9,000,000 men, of which 7,350,000 will be in the 30-44 age groups and 1,650,000 will be in the 20-21 year old group.

At the same time General Donovan announced that chairman of the 234 local boards are nearing completion of work in establishing approximately 2,000 additional registration places which, together with regular boards, will be open during the three-day registration period and from the hours of 7 A.M. to 9 P.M.

"Every effort will be exerted toward a speedy and complete registration without any loss of time whatsoever to workers in the national defense effort," General Donovan said.

SUGAR BOWL, Jan. 29—At a meeting of the Tahoe National Forest Rangers, Truckee and Donner hots, owners with Col. Possibilities of now running for the downhill for the National Four-Way Championships on the Reg. Mountain F.I.S. Championship Run are under study. A decision with this respect will be reached in the next few days.

AWARDS MADE ON SINGLE SLALOM IN ISF MEET AT BOWL

The third day of a blinding snow storm prevented the running off of all events in connection with the International Ski Federation Tournament on Saturday, January 24, and after a meeting of ski coaches and team captains it was decided unanimously to award the prizes on the result of a single run slalom. A course was packed by the contestants on Mt. Disney and a 20-gate slalom was set by Sugar Bowl Winter Sports Director John Wiley.

The course was open with only one flush, a hairpin and elbow to slow the runners down. There were 24 men and six women competing, with Clifford Banta of Leevining making the best time among the men of 39.2 and Alice Hardy of Reno attaining the best time for the women, 43.2. The ultimate awards which were made to the high schools competing were as follows:

1. Westwood 100 points
2. Reno 94.5 points
3. Palo Alto 90.5 points
4. Auburn 87.3 points
5. Bishop 65.5 points

GENERAL PRAISES WORK OF AIRCRAFT WARNING POSTS

Brig. Gen. William Ord Ryan this week voiced his approval and appreciation for the manner in which the ground observation corps of the Fourth Interceptor Command has been functioning throughout the state. The task, it was pointed out, is not a simple one, even though the whole program is carried on a purely voluntary basis and will continue to be handled in that manner.

There is no glamour in the work and no pay with the exception of the pride which every observer must feel in the fact that he is doing one of the most important tasks in national defense, General Ryan indicated.

A letter from General Ryan to each chief observer contained the words of praise and a plea that the work be continued faithfully in the future. The local posts have been on constant duty 24 hours a day since December 7.
